

In Memoriam

Everybody Else

Took a sip from a bottle of orange soda suddenly you were back
On my bike years ago Flashing the camera
you passed by, so quickly

I remember you
so remember me
as I was back then
in my ripped blue jeans
moments ago
It seems to me
that we were just kids
in a memory

I still see the blue, sunken barge down by the shore and I can taste the blackberry juice on our fingers but there's an echo of careless, callow footsteps that run by so quickly

I remember you
so remember me
as I was back then
It seems to me
that we were just kids in a memory

It feels good to forget how wonderful it was in the noise of a crowd but sometimes cars in the night sound like the ocean and then I swear
I'm back there seems so real
it disappears

I remember you
so remember me
as I was back then
moments ago
It seems to me that we were just kids in a memory
moments ago
It seems to me
that we were just kids
It seems to me
in a memory
