

Party At The Moon Tower

Everyone Dies In Utah

Don't bother trying to change mind
I've seen this far too many times

I've begun
A search for good across the human race
Because my doubts have grown about this place
If you can find someone that I maybe
Could be taught a thing or two, I might believe in you

About this place that I now have under my feet
On solid ground
As the world spins around

Well I should have known that time would come
Come to an end to everything I thought I knew from the things t hat I'm learning
I can't hide in this darkness, live in this darkness no more
'Cause I've seen the light in the darkest hearts of the world

If you lost your way
I'm not keeping track
I've seen the changes in this world
And I'm not going back

Show me a place that won't give up right now on me
I'm torn between the two
This is not the place I knew

I once had full faith in this place I called my home
This place is not my own
A world set in stone
Open up
those eyes
To see
The changes in
The light in me
Everyday is a struggle
To keep the dark
Away from me

Well I should have known that time would come
Come to an end to everything I thought I knew from the things t hat I'm learning
I can't hide in this darkness, live in this darkness no more
'Cause I've seen the light in the darkest hearts of the world
