My Great Rebellion

I've been told hundred times hypocrites advise my life We have no hope of better happiness than to join them We are drifting you and I down a path that's so defined Blinding light tides advance dreams are swept from my sight It's freedom in a way from the mind that's been so betrayed My great rebellion has yet to end It seems the current is stronger these days that I swim against Aren't you scared of the day That well all have to let go and flow freely Hysterical as it may seem I'm not quite sure where Ive been Twenty three years now I'm losing the will to keep counting Craving something more than this broken heart now nothing fits Where to now I'm holding on as tight as I can It's freedom in a way from the mind thats been so betrayed My great rebellion has yet to end It seems the current is stronger these days that I swim against Aren't you scared of the day That well all have to let go and flow freely The galaxies unfolded once for me But I can't see the stars anymore I laid out my dreams to you It took me time to realise the truth It's freedom in a way from the mind thats been so betrayed My great rebellion has yet to end It seems the current is stronger these days that I swim against Aren't you scared of the day That well all have to let go and flow freely
