it gets out

feeling slow
watching
everyone is passing by
and im still here
is this worth
all the stress and come around
'cause im still down everything is so confusing

competition swallows me from a life where what you hear ain't always what you see competition worries me brings out the best in you and the worst in me

caught this time
in the middle come and find a common ground everyone seems to be staring am i wrong
indecision
i don't know who ive become and i'm not sure who you are either

and the worst in me

i suppose you have some games that you would love to play with me i sure do would you like to try be my guest
