

Closet Weather

Fireworks

I guess you're over them
No big surprise you let them down again
You did it all for an elevated view from the closet in your room
You did it all for you
And that's what I say

Hold your breath
You're not just hanging by a thread
Nothing's left
You designed your problems and left behind a mess

You made up a world that sits on your back
Weighing down your shoulders and breaking your neck

You're so over them
No big surprise you let them down again
You did it all for that elevated view from the closet in your room
You did it all for you
And that's what I say

(Alright) You know you sing the blues
It's so sad but how true?
What's sad is those with nothing have the most to prove

You made up a world that sits on your back
Weighing down your shoulders and breaking your neck

You're so over them
No big surprise you let them down again
You did it all for that elevated view from the closet in your room
You did it all for you
And that's what I say

So find a ladder so high
And turn back the hands of time
I wouldn't, I couldn't
Bad intentions don't deserve second chances
Blame the world but you kicked...

I guess you're over them
No big surprise you let them down again
For an elevated view from the closet in your room
You did it all for you
It's all for you

(Heroes don't die by their own ropes in their own homes)
And that's what I say
(Heroes don't die by their own ropes in their own homes)

So blame the world but you kicked your own chair
