

I Support Same Sex Marriage

Fireworks

You're a classic case of,
"Look around, It's obvious!"
But further down your arm from that bracelet on your wrist
Your armpit's getting sore from the crutches you've been living with

You want to love Him but you don't know how
I can live with I don't know how
You want to love Him but you don't know how
So trust yourself and no one else

When you spend all your time with your eyes to the sky
You end up looking down your nose just to look me in the eye

I see you handing out a pocket sized version of ten rules
Just over the property line of your high school

You want to love Him but you don't know how
(I can live with I don't know how)
When you open that book, you close your mind
So trust yourself and no one else
Before something else

When you spend all your time
With your eyes to the sky
You end up looking down your nose just to look me in the eye
When you spend all your time
With your eyes to the sky
You end up looking down your nose just to look me in the eye

You're filling a dark room with hopes that no one will see
(To turn on a light) you have to get up off your knees
So get up off your knees
You always bring me down...

So trust yourself
And no one else

When you spend all your time
With your eyes to the sky
You end up looking down your nose just to look me in the eye

When you spend (spend) all your time (your time)
With your eyes to the sky
You end up looking down your nose just to look me in the...
You always bring me down

When you spend all your time
With your eyes to the sky
You always bring me down
(You end up looking down your nose just to look me in the eye)

When you spend all your time
With your eyes to the sky
You end up looking down your nose just to look me in the eye

To turn on the light you have to get up off your knees