

Those Days Are Gone

Fishbone

When you're alone, can't fine
Your way out of the maze

Life is ablaze and you're Right there in the flames

Is this pain?
Are we sane?

And who has established these claims?
While we all try to refrain

I had a dream once there was a wall inside my head
You all had put it there

We lived a life once we felt together as one

And now those days are gone

We fled that place there was a beast kept there

He was mighty and strong and his name was jealousy

We all laughed we felt we would rise above with our unity, our unity

But later on that day he came back to say

That I have a friend and his name is envy

We toppled many lives, we're like a mighty hurricane

We bring destruction, and we cause descension
