

By now I have learned
There's only hope for me if she says so
And when all my bridges burn
She'll finally be the only road I know

Oh she understands
The little ways I twist and cough
That's the way she learned the price
Of living with the safety off
By now the whole of her life
Has been traded like a pawn
That's why she knows the price
Of living with the safety on
So we tumble through the night
We know we just might make it to the day
Make it through the day in safety

In Safety

In Safety

In Safety

No don't cry

No don't cry

There's always something new for us to try
Come the night, by firelight
We'll tear away the cobwebs from our eyes

By now I have learned
There's only hope for me if she says so
When all my bridges burn
She'll finally be the only road I know

She understands the little ways I twist and cough
Now she knows the price
Of living with the safety off
(Twisting metal, breaking glass)
