

Awakend this dying season
Such a beauty to behold
Oh autumn hath arrived
A tragedy painted dead
Fallen am I
Without thee, I am lost
In a region of doleful shades
I am withering away
I dwell in the shdaows of life
A dismal state of mind
I'm in pain
Oh sun, I hate thy beams
Leave me here to sleep and dream
In the midst of falling leaves
In a garden of endless grief
I yearn for thee my precious one
Beneath a pale grey sky
I dream of your embrace
How I wish I had you near
In this oh so dolorous life
Where dreams turn to dust
I have lost all my hope
Of lasting pain and unpresent bliss
This soul of mine
I welcome thee eternal sleep
Silent advent of white death
I feel so cold
Silent advent of white death
I feel so cold
Crystallized tears
Falling still
Oh autumn hath died
Enshrouded am I in thy mist
Of endless gloom
Enthralled am I by thy beauty
How I wish
How I wish
In the midst of falling snow
In a garden of endless grief
My forlorn soul of misery
Where peace and rest can never dwell
Hope never comes
I see no point in going on
Still I dream but now I know
I dream a lie
So I close my eyes and I sigh
A life of shattered dreams
I can no longer bear
I enter thee eternal sleep