

How Does Your Heart Forget

Ginuwine

When you've got a that call of the one that you've held so close,
When you know it's time to turn and walk away!
There's nothing left to say, you know it's for the best,
Your mind knows it's over, yeah!

How does your heart forget?
How does it ever find a way to get over, babe?
How do you leave behind the best days of your life?
It might take some tears, it might take some time!

You know it's all wrong, yeah
To try to hold on, yeah,
And you know there's nothing left to hold on to,
And nothing you can do, will bring it back again, no!
Your mind knows it's over!

How does your heart forget?
How does it ever find a way to get over, babe?
How do you leave behind the best days of your life?
It might take some tears, it might take some time!

You could think you won't remember
The gesture upon your skin,
And when it's all gone you're finally free!
Then you see them on the street and then you fall upon.

How does your heart forget?
How does it ever find a way to get over, babe?
How do you leave behind the best days of your life?
It might take some tears, it might take some time!
So tell me how does your heart forget?
How does it ever find a way to get over, babe?
How do you leave behind the best days of your life?
It might take some tears, it might take some time!
It might take some tears, it might take some time!