

Love Song

Glen Campbell

There's a place inside my throat
Where all the tender things I long to say
Somehow get caught
And now it seems that I might choke
On old forgotten words
I should have said
But somehow did not

Let my life, let it be your love song
Let these eyes say the words that I will never say
And if there's still a way back to your lovin' heart, I'll do my part
Just let my life, let it be, let it be, let it be your love song

And there's a space inside my soul
As deep as the ocean, wider than the sky
And it's shaped like you
But nothing seems to fill that hole
But old forgotten dreams
That have no hope
Of coming true, sweet darlin'

And my life, let it be your love song
Let these eyes say the words that I will never say
And if there's still a way back to your lovin' heart, I'll do my part
Just let my life, let it be, let it be, let it be your love song
