

Shattered

Glen Campbell

I'm shattered
Like a windowpane
Broken by a stone
Each tiny piece of me just lies alone

Scattered
Far beyond repair
All my shiny dreams
Just lyin' there

I'm broken, but I'm laughing
It's the sound of falling glass
And I hope that you don't mind if I don't cry
In public, while I wait for this to pass

'Cause sweet darlin' I'm shattered
I thought you might agree
I thought someone might care
But now I know it never really mattered
I lost you and my precious love is shattered

I'm broken, but I'm laughing
It's the sound of fallin' glass
And I hope that you don't mind that I don't cry
In public, while I wait for this to pass

'Cause sweet darlin' I'm shattered
I thought you might agree
I thought someone might care
But now I see it doesn't really matter
You left me and my precious love is shattered
