Can we talk just a little more like we did before Sing it loud like it matters to you Don't be so whoa oh oh oh, whoa Oh no

Can this be just a little more heart and a little less consequence So this is what you think about But did you have to say it all out loud

And you can stay
Or give your heart to someone else
There'll always be someone here cold to lay beside me
And you can leave cut your loss and save yourself
You can find somebody else to give your worse
But let me fall asleep first

Can this song get a little dark and can it leave a mark Can I say what I need for a change But don't be so cold So bold

This is aimed at what you'll say when the light gets turned out and it all f eels the same

Something to sing about

Or maybe something to scream about

And you can stay
Or give your heart to someone else
There'll always be someone here cold to lay beside me
And you can leave cut your loss and save yourself
You can find somebody else to give your worse
But let me fall asleep first

She's in a tight shirt with a little bit of lipstick And I've never felt this homesick now As now

You know it really is a shame
Where your hearts at
I guess its something of a game
And how the key fits
And every story ends the same
Can we help it
If this was any other time, any other place we would lose it all
Anything decent
With the memory of her taste
I couldn't fix it
If I was any other boy
If this were any other time, maybe any other place I could lose it all

And you can stay
Or give your heart to someone else
There'll always be someone here cold to lay beside me
And you can leave cut your loss and save yourself
You can find somebody else to give your worse
But let me fall asleep first

You can find somebody else to give your worse But let me fall asleep first
