Golden Earring

When Jorma the witch raised her hand You could hear her awful laughing Stirring in a boiling jar While the raven was almost starving Then she went into the fields And she went into the marsh With a satchel on her back To find the bats and to find the herbs While the raven was sitting on her neck

Satisfied, but in her mind she was screaming About the best trick Ever done by a witch And it was steaming

But then came the night of the full moon She challenged S.W. Johanna S.W. Johanna accepted the challenge And said I'll show you what I can, yeah Many days they fought one another You know what she went through With a smiling face Jorma returned, whispering
