

The One About Indifference

He Is We

You bow your head,
In shame of all the things you've said and done.
I bow my head,
To feel his grace and to embrace his son.
I am far,
So very far from worthy of his love.
They try to break me,
But through him I can always rise above,
And breathe.

Keep your head above the water,
These waves are getting taller.
Pulling you down, down.

Your heart it likes,
The feeling of indifference fills your mind.
You can't rely,
Recall the life of faith you've left behind.
Who it hides,
You could almost cry.

Don't deny your father,
He's your way out of this water,
That's pulling you down, down.

Tell him to wait, he's waiting for you.
(Tell him to wait, he's waiting for you to call, he'll catch you and lift your head up and breathe, on solid ground, he's there and waiting)

He will never leave you,
Don't let this world deceive you
And bring you down, down

Your head's above the water
(Keep your head above the water)
And everything seems smaller
You're not going down
(These waves are getting so much stronger)
