Red Tears Of Disgrace

Can you hear the warning? What's been done and what's been said? People always talking But no one's listening to the dead I'm beside myself in disgust Watching the world turn to dust

I heard someone screaming Where will we be once all is lost? And who's gonna count the cost? Who's gonna count the loss?

I see the madness in their eyes, in their eyes Their empty words are filled with promises But they're lies Siphoning everything draining blood from the earth A day of reckoning and suffering Will cover what's left of this world

Temperatures rising A new end is drawing The sky is crying red tears of disgrace

I hear the sadness in their cries, in their cries Spilled tears through the years have all run dry, bone dry Wanna start a revolution not a war Wanna find a resolution before we melt to the core Temperatures rising A new end is drawing The sky is crying red tears of disgrace

Did you heed the warning? Cause time is coming to an end There's too much talking But not enough being said Heathen
