

Over My Head

Holiday Parade

Since it began, I'm so in over my head. You leave me lost inside my skin. But I tell you, you're my four leaf clover, baby. Patch yourself up in the patchwork.

Crossing slowly's such a big itch, I'll make mistakes along the way. And then you tell me that's what love, that's what love is. And I'm happy here one day, one day.

Hold your breath and take a step into, to whatever comes after. My God, we made it this far so let's celebrate, raise your glasses now. And all alone it's a long walk home. My God you had me at hello.

When I kiss you I hear Jimmy Eat World, and when you smile you show your teeth. You know I'll always be right by your side, forever baby, and every second in between.

And then the minutes turn to days, and weeks and months, and moments then they start to fade. The only thing from you that I could ever want is just to hold you for one more day, more day.

Hold your breath and take a step into, to whatever comes after. My God, we made it this far so let's celebrate, raise your glasses now. And all alone it's a long walk home. My God you had me at hello.

You don't have to go, you could always stay, catch a later train, I'll be with you one more. You don't have to go, you could always stay, catch a later train, I'll be with you one more night, one more night, one more night
