

Sarah to David

Hotel Books

David, don't allow yourself to be sucked into the gravity of people who don't care about you
Release yourself from this false narrative so you can finally see what is true
You will never find freedom in trying to control someone just so you can control their needs
We might wither away with the weeds, but only if our hearts don't plant better seeds
So don't worry about which one you feed, make sure both have real balance
Because we are only as strong as our weakest link and our love was blistered and calloused
Allow yourself to be love, not just to those who love you back but yourself as well
Because there is nothing strong you can do to counteract
Be you, the real you. Not the one that always needs to be right
Accept the journey is complex
A simply exist to be shining light
Be you
