

Stalemate

Hundred Reasons

And I will stare across the ocean
Think of that's where I'm supposed to be
At least appeased
And for the last time I'll open
A heart that is riddled with disease
To share with me

And yet before, we start tonight, in the end
A stalemate was reached tonight, in the end

Accusing as you point the finger
It's funny how you judge before you think
It's who you are
Take me to a place where we are
Waiting for the world to pass us by
Upon our knees

And yet before, we start tonight, in the end
A stalemate was reached tonight, in the end

And yet before, we start tonight, in the end
A stalemate was reached tonight, in the end