

She's fighting off her last demise,
trying to live a simple life,
her road is crooked got dead ends,
her smile is painted and pretend.
She's broken in and been roughed up,
she'll drink it off it's not enough.
So when you see her please don't stare,
cause her world's fallen and she don't care,
she don't ca a aare, she don't care, she don't care.

They thought I'd save her,
be the one, but I got issues of my own.
She's calling screaming on the phone,
I can't pick up, I can't be alone.
She's broken in and been roughed up,
she'll drink it off it's not enough.
So when you see her please don't stare,
cause her world's fallen and she don't care,
she don't ca a aare, she don't care, she don't care.

She dragged me in the bathroom stall,
said her downfall was my fault.
A tear stained scar upon her face for things she lost and can't replace. She's broken in and been roughed up, she'll drink it off it's not enough.
So when you see her please don't stare,
cause her world's fallen and she don't care,
she don't ca a aare, she don't care, she don't care.

Looks like she's gone. She's never coming back again, she's never coming back again.
Looks like she's gone. She's never coming back
again, she's never coming back again.
Looks like she's gone. She's never coming back
again, she's never coming back again.
Looks like she's gone. She's never coming back again, she's never coming back again.
