

Unpardonable Sin

Immolation

Take your heaven
And your hell
And leave them for the children
I refuse to believe these lies

Show me you're real
Prove your greatness
Can you show me that you really loved us
That you really died to save us from damnation
I don't think you can, I don't think you will

Divine illumination sees no path to forgiveness
When the one who defies the lord is cast out forever

Banishment from the house of God is not what I fear
For his kingdom is divided and his people shall stray

I commend myself for this unpardonable sin
For now more than ever I see clearer than before

One above, how mighty are your wonders
Your kingdom is everlasting, yet so empty
Your saints have chosen sin over glory
Your strength has diminished, my fallen one

The misery that surrounds me,
I'm repulsed by your name
Your images has brought despair to the ones you've forsaken
Your death I'll rejoice as your sickness disappears
Lament in your own failure,
For in death there is rebirth

I commend myself for this unpardonable sin
For now more than ever I see clearer than before
