

All I've Ever Known

Jamestown Story

You came home late, you made me wait, my mind was racing and I could see the signs, behind your eyes, the truth in your lies

So you point your finger and I'll take the blame I'm tired of your sick twisted games
Did I say enough, or did I say too much?
Now you're gone, that's just my luck

You said it best when you stood up without words grabbed your t hings and just left me alone and now where do I go? When you're all I've ever known

You, you did your worst, you made it hurt, you cut me deep and I lost control, my mind went dark as a black hole my head and my heart seem to hate each other one says it's lust the other says I love her

did I say enough, or did I say too much?
Now you're gone, that's just my luck, where did you run?

Where do I go from here?
Where did you go my dear?

You and I are like fire and ice turned into ashes
the wind can have them
Yeah you and I are like fire and ice turned into ashes take them you can have them
You and I are like fire and ice turned into ashes
the wind can have them
Yeah you and I are when fire and ice collide

You did it best, you drank all the good and left me the rest Where did you go, where did you go?
Where do I go, when you're all I've ever known?
