Your Song

JamisonParker

Tonight I'd rather be in love rather it was you flowing through my blood scraping through my veins my everything and you cling to every thread that clings to me

I live in notes and photographs and everything I'm holding back but you're the words that weren't enough you remind me of a song I used to love

I couldn't call you if I wanted my fingers couldn't work if they tried they're so sore from keeping crossed and tracing over cuts on my worthless arms if I said "I hated the feeling" it would be a lie

I live in notes and photographs and everything I'm holding back but you're the words that weren't enough you remind me of a song I used to love

I live in notes and photographs and everything I'm holding back but you're the words that weren't enough you remind me of a song I used to love

you remind me of a song I used to love