

Every Moment Belongs

Jason Gray

I've known hurt, I've been through the fire
I've been the victim of my own desire
Oh, oh, oh
I think it all belongs
I've known joy, I've danced with delight
Laughed like a child, with my heart open wide
Oh, oh, oh
I think it all belongs

I wouldn't be who I am now
Without the way that it all played out

'Cause every trial and triumph that I've been through
Were just the chapters in the story of my rescue
And whether I was brave or afraid
Your love was strong
Through every mountain and valley to where I stand
You took each moment and made me just who I am
And from here, I can see You were with me
All along
It's so clear to me now
Every moment belongs

I've been angry and shook my fist at the sky
There were nights I swore Your love was a lie
But oh, oh, oh
I know it all belongs
I've known Your peace beyond the shadow of doubt
Felt held so tight like I'd never fall out
Oh, oh, oh
Thank God it all belongs (Thank God it all belongs, thank God it all belongs
)

'Cause every trial and triumph that I've been through
Were just the chapters in the story of my rescue
And whether I was brave or afraid
Your love was strong
Through every mountain and valley to where I stand
You took each moment and made me just who I am
And from here, I can see You were with me
All along
It's so clear to me now
Every moment belongs

I learned everything that I needed to know
By walking each mile of this broken and holy road
I am who I am today

'Cause every trial and triumph that I've been through
Were just the chapters in the story of my rescue
And whether I was brave or afraid
Your love was strong
Through every mountain and valley to where I stand
You took each moment and made me just who I am
And from here, I can see You were with me
All along
It's so clear to me now

Every moment belongs

Yeah You leave nothing out
'Cause every moment belongs