

Doorway

Jason Walker

You pull me in, you let me go
And where I stand, I never know
Without a word, without a chance
You lock me out, not coming back

I'm choosing your blindness
And lost in your silence
Building up walls around you
You can be honest
And look down the garden
I'll be the door you walk through

I'm hoping some day
I'll be the doorway
I'll light the whole way
Back for you, back for you
And if you follow
The sound of the echo
That leads through the doorway
That I left for you, that I left for you

Brighter now and through the air
Is anyone even there?
I'm falling down, I'm falling through
I'll fall until I get to you

I'm choosing your blindness
And lost in your silence
Building up walls around you
You can be honest
And look down the garden
I'll be the door you walk through

I'm hoping some day
I'll be the doorway
I'll light the whole way
Back for you, back for you
And if you follow
The sound of the echo
That leads through the doorway
That I left for you, that I left for you

I'm hoping some day
I'll be the doorway
I'll light the whole way
Back for you, back for you
And if you follow
The sound of the echo
That leads through the doorway
That I left for you, that I left for you