

The Way Back

Jason Walker

How do we begin to navigate this maze
How are we supposed to see the lines we've traced
Tell me how are we supposed to find the way back, mmmh
When did I and when did you forget
Give in to the water in a sinking ship
And do we even wanna try to find the way back

One foot in front of the other
Into the arms of a lover
And out again
Let go, learn how to breathe in
Stop looking for any reason
To try to find the way back

Can we climb over all the bricks we stacked
And ever see each other for more than the past
We put this mess together now is there a way back, oh

One foot in front of the other
Into the arms of a lover
And out again
Let go, learn how to breathe in
Stop looking for any reason
To try to find the way back

So why are we chasing what we'll never have
Let's walk the X off of this treasure map
And admit to ourselves at this time there's no way back
