Julie

Jens Lekman

Oh Julie, meet me by the vending machine Oh Julie, I'm gonna buy you a wedding ring

Eating french fries by the dock of the bay Lots of ketchup and mayonnaise You said this town's too big for our hearts You can't tell where it ends or starts

Oh Julie, the future could be so bright Oh Julie, the ticket inspector's out of sight

What will you do when you graduate If you stay here you'll suffocate And all your friends are moving to London While the cherry trees are still in blossom

Oh Julie Oh hold me, hold me trough the sweet hereafter

Being with you can be very fatal Somehow we forget to pray for the angels Then the angels make sure that our hearts are devoured Make us jump from the Eiffel Tower

Oh Julie, you know that I ain't for hire But you can have me, you can trade me for your cigarette lighte r

Take a step from the humdrum Tearing down the Colosseum They said we'd hit the bottom But the cherry trees are still in blossom

Julie, you know that I ain't for hire But you can have me, you can trade me for your cigarette lighte r Oh Julie
