

Pride Today

Jerry Reed

Today's foolish pride could be tomorrow's sad regret
The one mistake boy you might never forget
Which one was right which one was wrong
Could it matter any less
Ah but any fool could tell ya son
That pride has no place in real happiness

So run to her now boy and let her know
How much you missed her and still love her so
Cause chances are if you'll go that far
She'll more than meet you half way
Don't lose tomorrow's happiness over foolish pride today

Always a big thing where young hearts are concerned
Is the lesson in pride that must be learned
So don't make tomorrow your lonely reminder
All of your happiness is gone cause you were too proud too long

Run to her now boy and let her know...
