

Over A Man

Jill Johnson

She used to be a brunet but he told her liked blonds He said that he liked high heels, so she always had 'em on She's sweet as honey suckle, an angel from the south
If you knew her then, you wouldn't recognize her now

Oh oh oh
she let the sun go out let him walk right in and take the words right out her mouth
Oh oh oh
she let her dreams lay down where they use to stand oh oh over a man

She moved out of her hometown, he called it a dead end He told her love was never needed in anyone but him her heart is mostly quiet until he makes her cry shel tells herself she's happy, but it has to be a lie

Oh oh oh
she let the sun go out
let him walk right in and take the words right out her mouth
Oh oh oh
she let her dreams lay down where they use to stand
oh oh over a man

Did everything he could to make her small blinded her with love that wasn't love at all

Oh oh oh
she let the sun go out
let him walk right in and take the words right out her mouth
Oh oh oh
she let her dreams lay down where they use to stand
oh oh over a man

Oh oh oh
she let the sun go out
let him walk right in and take the words right out her mouth
Oh oh oh
she let her dreams lay down where they use to stand
oh oh over a man

Someday she'll wake up and she's had enough when he's taking all she can stand she'll be oh oh oh over oh oh over a man
