

All I Ever See In You Is Me

Jillette Johnson

My mother is a child
She's idle wild
She's unpredictable and juvenile
And my daddy is a saint
But fully fulfil my fathering

If I were her, I'd be broken
If I were him, then I would be more open
But much as I believe I can see
All I ever see in them is me

My lover is gone, he's so withdrawn
It's hard for me to put my finger on
What exactly went wrong
Most I know is my lover is gone

If I were her, the one who broke her
I wouldn't've ever leave him gaping open
But much as I believe I can see
All I ever see in him is me
All I ever see in him is me

My brother is home
My flesh and bones
I can hardly believe my telephone
But that's him talking to me now
Tryna think of what to talk about

If I were him, I'd be broken
I don't remember him being soft spoken
But much as I believe I can see
All I ever see in him is me
All I ever see in him is me
All I ever see in you is me
