

Weak, Proudly

Jillian Edwards

So is it alright to let You take the floor
I don't wanna sit on this throne anymore
Finally found my home here at Your feet
I lift my head and our eyes meet
I expect You to look away and find somebody better suited
But You keep on looking at me
All the sudden I'm proud of the emptiness inside me
Proud of the way You fill me up
All the better if I'm at the end of myself
The end of myself and I need You
All the better if I don't know where I am
Other than Your hands
Your strength lies inside my weakness
So I'll be weak, proudly
I've been stuck in my reflection, knocking on the glass
Thinking I'll find my own way, I can move past
All the filth and mud stained on my skin
Guess I'll work on myself, try it again
And I expect You to be polite, wait outside while I clean up
But you bust down the door to me

All the sudden I'm proud of the emptiness inside me
Proud of the way You fill me up
All the better if I'm at the end of myself
The end of myself and I need You
All the better if I don't know where I am
Other than Your hands
Your strength lies inside my weakness
So I'll be weak, proudly
You covered Yourself, You covered Yourself with me
All my stains
I cover myself, I cover myself with You
You covered Yourself, You covered Yourself with me
All my stains
I cover myself, I cover myself with You
(All the better)
All the better if I'm at the end of myself
The end of myself and I need you (All the better)
All the better if I don't know where I am
Other than Your hands (Other then Your hands)
Your strength lies inside my weakness
So I'll be weak, proudly
(I'll be weak, proudly)
I'll be weak, proudly
