Eating the Visions of God

Job for a Cowboy

 $\ensuremath{\text{I}}$ am staring at the Sun of the Nothing

For I want to eat the visions of God

Consuming the knowledge and power that radiates overhead

As I slumber in a bed of vegetation and thorns leaving behind \boldsymbol{u} nease and dread

I feed from pretentious notions and malignant demons through it s rays

For hell is abandoned and this single horror walks amongst our ongoing cliches

My eyes, my perception - They seem to smolder and whiten For it seems that I have peered into the diseased display of my self

I am the eater of the sun

I am the destroyer of worlds