

I Hope Things Aren't Like This Tomorrow

John Anderson

It's a fact I know that love is strange
It plays so many crazy games
Love can come and love may go

But both sides have to bear the hurt I know
So let's just say enough's enough
And call it a love I fell for your bluff
I'm sittin' here and drowning in my sorrow
I hope things aren't like this tomorrow

We both know how hard we tried
Every story has two sides
Love is young but love gets old
Love is hot and sometimes love gets cold

And like a fool who keeps hanging on
Wondering where your love went wrong
I'm sittin' here and drowning in my sorrow
I hope things aren't like this tomorrow

My friends say all I need is time
But I can't seem to get you off my mind
Forgettin' is something that is hard to do
It's keeping me from gettin' over you

And I don't wanna hear how times are hard
I've got to pull the weeds from my own backyard
I'm sittin' here and drowning in my sorrow
I hope things aren't like this tomorrow

No I don't wanna hear how times are hard
I've got to pull the weeds from my own backyard
I'm sittin' here and drowning in my sorrow
I hope things aren't like this tomorrow
