

Face The Fear

John Entwistle

(c) 1997 Entwistle, Luongo, Townsend & Levi

A million miles away seems like only yesterday
My soul was free
I was young without a care there was something in the air
Simplicity
I've lost what once was mine to the greedy hands of time
Now I'm afraid
As I start to realize something's missing in my eyes
My life is gray
And everyday reality gets stronger
Don't turn your back it won't disappear
Seize the day, seize the night, face the fear
It's gets very hard to tell if the ocean in the shell
Is what it seems
Get your head out of the sand take your life in both your hands
And live your dreams
The rainbow in your tears points the way through all your years
Of sleepless nights
The sun still shines above the clouds and as long as you know h ow
You'll see the light
Don't listen to the ocean in a seashell
The waves inside are not what they appear
Seize the day, seize the night, face the fear
Cause everyday reality gets stronger
Don't turn your back it won't disappear
Seize the day, seize the night, face the fear