

Everything New

John Mark McMillan

I can feel your power love
Even in the hours of
The beckoning day or the darkening night

Cause you are making all things new
You are making everything new
You are making all things new
You are making everything everything

Like the sounds of a baby crying
Light breaks over Your horizon
I'm caught in the fall and the rise of Your tide
Like mountains born in fire
Born again by Your desire
I'm caught in the heart of the world You conspire

Cause you are making all things new
You are making everything new
You are making all things new

You are making everything everything
You are making all things new
You are making everything new
You are making all things new
You are making everything everything

I'm caught in Your heart
Your country of love
I'm caught in Your heart
Let Your country come

Cause you are making all things new
You are making everything new
You are making all things new
You are making everything everything
You are making all things new
You are making everything new
You are making all things new
You are making everything everything