

I Don't Need To Know That Right Now

Johnny Paycheck

I've seen the glow of the candle in your eyes At night, that seems so right, somehow You might be leaving tomorrow But I don't need to know that right now.

I feel the warmth heart inside me And feel the soft touch of your hand on my brow And maybe we tell each other lies But I don't need to know that right now.

We could fall in love if we wanted to While we're right here, lost in desire And maybe you belong to another But I don't need to know that right now.

I feel the warmth of the fire when you hold me Tonight just seemed so right, somehow And maybe I'll never see you again But I don't need to know that right now.

I don't need to know that right now...
