

The Stone

Josh Ritter

Change your face
Change your name
Rip the roots that you laid down
Rip the roots that you laid down
You'll keep your hurt
You'll keep your pain
Close company now
Close company now

Lying wide awake
In a different house
With different arms around you now
On a different street
In a different town
On the same old road
That the night comes down
That the night comes down

Love'll burn a hole
Through your human doubts
And free your heart from the stone
Free your heart from the stone
And the stone may roll
But it'll search you out
No matter where you go
It'll find you

Lying wide awake
In a different house
With different arms around you now
On a different street
In a different town
On the same old road
That the night comes down
On the same old road
That the night comes down
That the night comes down