Joy Williams

Second Nature

It's so typical I'm always amazed When it comes to You Feels so natural To be blown away When I stop and think of How your love is etched upon my heart And how no matter If I laugh, If I hope If I dream You're a part of me

Wanting You, needing You Loving You comes to me It comes like Second Nature like Breathing in, breathing out Something I don't think about It comes like Second Nature Second Nature

Like an instinct That I can't control I always turn to You It's a spiritual thing A thirst in my soul That makes me run Into your arms and to the place Our hears collide where everything comes clear And I see, from the start This is how love was meant to be

It's so obvious I was born for this Born for a love like this And I know for sure I've been captured There's no escaping this...