

I Am No One

Julia Stone

I met your parents, they were lying on the floor
Falling in love like they'd done a million times before
You walked me to my car, I could feel your heart beating
Was dreaming of the grace of finding someone to believe in

Oh, oh, what have I become?
I'm living off the pieces of other people's love
Oh, oh, what have I done?
You were just a boy and I am no one

You drive me down your street
The trees are all breathing
You were teaching me there's something bigger than this
Now I'm leaving again
I'm leaving you again

Oh, oh, what have I become?
I'm living off the pieces of other people's love
Oh, oh, what have I done?
You were just a boy and I am no one

What have I done? What have I done? What have I done?
What have I done? What have I done? What have I done?
What have I done? What have I done? What have I done?
What have I done? What have I done? What have I done?
What have I done? What have I done? What have I done?

Oh, oh, what have I become?
I'm living off the pieces of other people's love
Oh, oh, what have I done?
You were just a boy
You were just a boy

Oh, oh, what have I become?
I'm living off the pieces of other people's love
Oh, what have I done?
You were just a boy and I am no one
