

Black

Karin Park

In the moment before the fall
I am lying down

'Cause with your last blow you break my jaw
I can hear the sound

When I open my eyes I found that you are not even here
Just one more thing before I disappear

Whatever it takes, what ever keeps me alive
Whatever it breaks, just tell me how to survive
This lonely night

You keep me waiting in the dark for the longest time
And now the grass is turning brown
And

There's a hunger inside my mind that I just can't control
And now it's started burning on the

Whatever it takes, what ever keeps me alive
Whatever it breaks, just tell me how to survive

If I break every rule, every bone in my back
Ohh I just need some time to get on the right track

Do whatever it takes, to make the hours go by
This lonely night

Boom, black is my drum beat
Boom, black is my drum beat
Boom, black is my drum beat
Boom, black is my drum beat

Whatever it takes, what ever keeps me alive
Whatever it breaks, just tell me how to survive

If I break every rule every bone in my back
Ohh I just need some time to get on the right track

Do whatever it takes to make the hours go by
This lonely night
This lonely night
This lonely night