All of my days spent are crashing around, crashing around All of my years spent are running around, running around All of my weeks spent are crashing around, crashing around And you feel

All of our weeks spent are flitting around, flitting around All of my years spent are waking around, waking around All of my weak legs is plodding around, is plodding around And you feel And you feel Emily

And you feel Emily Emily Emily

Well you never really had to know And you never really had to know And you never really had to know, girl

And you never really lost the plot
I mean you never really lost the plot, oh
I mean you never really lost the plot
I mean you never really lost the plot
I mean you never really lost the plot, oh
Well you never really lost the plot
And you never really lost the plot, oh
