

The Best Today

Keaton Henson

Stuck in a mess.
Told you I sit and stare at you.
You seem to look through me,
I wonder what you see.
I still have two stations yet,
counting the one we just left.
Wish I could stay with you,
and ask you what you do.
I figured you love to read.
Don't look for the fault, like me.
You probably love the sun,
I think you're the only one.

I wish I could wake at dawn,
to see you without make up.
Wish I had the guts to say,
you look the best today,
you look the best today,
you look the best today.

I feel I know your smile,
like I saw it when I was a child.
But today you just frown and bleed,
your eyes flicker perfectly.
Rush out, the crush surround. (?)
Reminds me that we're still in town.
I think I will turn and I sat and watched a stranger cry.

I wish I could wake at dawn,
to see you without make up.
Wish I had the guts to say,
you look the best today,
you look the best today,
you look the best today,
you look the best today,
you look the best today.

As I get off the train,
look back to see you through the frame.
A man sits and blocks my view,
and I forget you.