

My Heart Is a Ghost

Kutless

My heart is a ghost, faded and blurred,
It used to be real with letters and words,
Shadows and borders clouding my eyes,
This light will grow dim holding onto the lies.

I see you, I feel you, I know you're here,
But I fear my heart is a ghost,
I see you, I feel you, I know you're here,
But I fear my heart is a ghost.

So I silence the voices, swallow my pride,
Hold onto what's real, throw darkness aside,
Hold onto the promise, and fall to my knees,
Forgiveness is freedom, it's all that I need.

I see you, I feel you, I know you're here,
But I fear my heart is a ghost,
I see you, I feel you, I know you're here,
But I fear my heart is a ghost.

Will you take away all the fear and all the shame,
Keep me running from everything that I've become.

I see you, I feel you, I know you're here,
But I fear my heart is a ghost,
I see you, I feel you, I know you're here,
But I fear my heart is a ghost.
