We used to play tag back when I was a kid
I'd never get caught running free like the wind
Now were all grown up and the rules have changed
Everybody's online and it's a brand new game

Where if you get tagged every bodies gonna' know
Who you've been talking to and where you go
And once you show up there ain't no turning back
After you get tagged

Let's say you're talking to somebody on a Saturday night
Tellin' jokes laughing only being polite
A complete and total stranger not even a friend
Oh but things look different through a camera lens

Where if you get tagged every bodies gonna' know
Who you've been talking to and where you go
And once you show up there ain't no turning back
After you get tagged
Oh after you get tagged

Looks like modern diction that everybody needs
Grapevine working overtime at digital speed
A watertight alibi that everybody sees
But you still can't hide from an online feed
Oh Yeah

You have a spotless reputation but now it's all gone
Even though you didn't do a dang thing wrong
You can say you're innocent but we've all heard
That picture on the internet is worth a thousand words

Where if you get tagged every bodies gonna' know
Who you've been talking to and where you go
And once you show up there ain't no turning back
After you get tagged
Oh after you get tagged
Oh after you get tagged
