Lake Street Dive

Same old second chances
Give you time and time again
Same old insufficient answers
Maybe I should just pretend
Another vase of day-old roses
And you say you just needed space
And we keep going through the motions
When we should go our separate ways

We go right up to the edge
But we never cross the line
So I say we're doing fine
But I'm not really sure
Any more
Any more

So this is what you wanted
One more fight to break the peace
And you say you're just being honest
But I think you don't want to leave

'Cause it's just another battle
Seems like you're still having fun
So I'd say that you have won
But I'm not keeping score
Any more
Any more

Wanted to fall in love, but we fell short
Darling, I'm not falling anymore

We used to share the tears
Still, the lion's share were mine
But I've run out over time
I'm not taking yours
I'm not taking yours
Any more
Any more

Nothing's wrong or right in love and war
But darling, I'm not fighting anymore
Darling, I'm not dying anymore
