It's funny not to care, and to know so much like the way you do your hair, and what you like to eat for lun ch

I could use it to seduce you if the slightest desire was there

It's funny not to care

It's funny not to care, but to know firsthand all the records that we share, like Tom Petty and the band I'm embarrassed to have a preference for my favorite jeans that you wear

oh, it's funny not to care

I'm sure I would; no I wouldn't really want to now I never could; no I couldn't really care for you I'm sure I would; no I wouldn't really want to now

'cause you've wasted my love and I've so little to give It's funny not to care, and be so in touch to regret and be aware that I've lost so much for so long, I've tagged along, now I find that I haven't a pray er

oh, it's funny not to care
