

Hands To Heal

Lana Lane

Sometimes when I'm alone
I wonder if all my hope is gone
To turn the page, will never come
So sad so all alone

Around your shadow the moonlight falls
Like a candle in the dark
What a heart can't bear
Could a gentle touch make right

Well I've been waiting for hands to heal me
With a heart so pure, I've waited so long
I've been waiting for hands to heal me
With a heart so pure, I've waited so long
For you to hold me all through the night
Through the night

A man becomes an island
Untouchable, no windows left to bar
And like a falling star he fades away
So far, ever far away

You were the one who fought spirit and soul
I thought your feet were on the ground
In that broken heart all that's left are rhymes, no reason

Well I've been waiting for hands to heal me
With a heart so pure, I've waited so long
I've been waiting for hands to heal me
With a heart so pure, I've waited so long

For that broken life, all that's left are rhymes, no reason
In a room somewhere hide the silent tears I see
