

In Exile

Lana Lane

A place in the sun at the end of the world

You think about the days and nights that brought you to this place

You had to run to keep yourself free

You left behind a life fallen from grace

You can be anyone when your in exile

You can be anyone you have to be

You can be anyone when your in exile

You can be anyone when you're free

It's cold in the sun at the end of the world

You think about it every single night you're in this place

It's all come undone, the life you knew

The days gone by are written in your face

It's gonna be a long way down

A long way down

You could be anyone, one year in exile

You could be anyone you have to be

And you can be anyone, soldier of exile

You can be anyone when you're free

Years gone by at the end of the world

The days and nights are different in this place

Alone in the sun, never again

You fought your way back to your state of grace

You could be anyone, a lifetime in exile

You could be anyone you had to be

But you can be anyone, children of exile

You can be anyone, 'cause you are free