

Nevermore

Lana Lane

Last night the rain swam with my teardrops
They journeyed far away over the hilltops
'til they finally meet the sea

Such a lonely road each tear will travel
Down an angels face as heart strings unravel
Then they fall onto the ground
But you never hear a sound

And they're gone forevermore
Lost in waves of midnight dreams
As they swim to meet the shore of Nevermore

Lazy morning yawns, daylight is yearning
Like fire in my palm, teardrops are burning
Falling slowly from the skies
Disappearing in my eyes

And they're gone forevermore
Lost in waves of midnight dreams
As they swim to meet the shore of Nevermore

I see a reflection and my heart pounds like the tide
Flowing below me are the rivers of goodbye
And the stars shine so brightly
Drying tears that wither like flowers

And they're gone forevermore
Lost in waves of midnight dreams
As they swim to meet the shore of Nevermore
Yes they're gone forevermore
Embers blowing in the wind
Finally sleeping on the shore of Nevermore