

Breathing In

Lee DeWyze

(Verse)

You're gonna have to tie my feet
And wrap my hands
Drag me to bare
I got caught staring at the white wall sky
On the summer of not again
And the table's a mess from all our fret
And all of the wine we had
And I almost forgot that the world fell apart today
But I guess it wasn't so bad

(Chorus)

And the only thing that's bringing me in
Is the taste of your lips and the smell of your skin
You're the only thing that's worth breathing in

(Verse)

And my arms are getting tired from carrying my load
And my eyes are getting tired 'cause you turned the lights down low
And your heart's only beat speak under the shades
I'm hearing every word
Would you come fly away at the sunrise of day?
Just like the morning broke

(Chorus)

And the only thing that's bringing me in
Is the taste of your lips and the smell of your skin
You're the only thing that's worth breathing in
Breathing in,
Breathing in Breathing in

(Chorus)

And the only thing that's bringing me in
Is the taste of your lips and the smell of your skin
You're the only thing that's worth...
Breathing in,
Breathing in
Breathing in
